Stacie Nevadomski Berdan

Stacie is a marketing and communications consultant, an expert on international careers, an award-winning author and sought-after speaker on campuses and within corporations around the world. Focusing on the elements of globalization, she provides practical and relevant advice to succeed in the global marketplace, including the value of understanding cross-cultural environments, the benefits of feminine leadership, and the changing role of managers within the context of an increasingly global and virtual workplace. Stacie's numerous broadcast appearances include NBC "Weekend Today", ABC News "Money Matters" and "America This Morning", CNN International, several FOX appearances, including International and "Money for Breakfast", and national and syndicated radio. Fortune called Get Ahead By Going Abroad "a must-read for anyone serious about going global". In addition, Stacie has been quoted and the book featured in USA Today, Time, the Wall Street Journal, International Herald Tribune, and MORE magazine, among numerous others. She is an engaging and lively speaker, sought-after by multi-national corporations, professional organizations and universities around the world.

Stacie spent the majority of her career at Burson-Marsteller, one of the world's leading global communications firms, rising from entry level to senior management. After her tenure at Burson-Marsteller, she went "in house" at Unilever, one of the world's largest consumer products companies. During her 15-year career, she counseled dozens of senior executives at the world's leading companies, internationally-acclaimed non-profit organizations and several foreign governments in the area of strategic business communication. It was her three years in Hong Kong, however, that gave her the opportunity to effectively differentiate and distinguish herself. She returned to Washington, D.C., with greater responsibility, jumping from vice-president to global account managing director. Her professional responsibilities have spanned more than 50 countries in Asia-Pacific, Europe and South America.

Stacie has served as coach, counselor, strategist and adviser to CEOs, politicians and senior executives around the world. Her cross-cultural consulting experiences enable her to work well with a diverse mixture of professionals across industry, seniority level, nationality and gender. She brings a unique perspective to the table as a female leader with international experience in these dynamic times.

Stacie received a Bachelor of Arts degree from Florida Atlantic University in 1988 and completed graduate course there in 1991. Stacie lives in a 1750 historic home in Glastonbury, CT, with her husband, twin daughters and Vizsla named Cody.
